

FRICITION

Question

What a frustrating experience we have had with externals?

Difficult interactions with organizations or individuals can be discouraging, but they also offer important lessons. How can we learn from these experiences to become more resilient?