

FRICITION

Question

When should we persevere, and when do we need to adapt?

It is not always easy to know whether to push through challenges or change course. What criteria or experiences help us find this balance? Have we done this successfully before?